

The Orbach laboratory studies mechanisms of virulence in fungal plant and animal pathogens, with a focus on Coccidioides. Using genetics, and gene expression studies, their work identifying Coccidioides virulence factors led to the discovery and development of the delta-cps1 vaccine against Coccidioidomycosis that is under development for treatment of dogs.